- Independent medical examination and reporting, improved communication between insurers and lawyers, and better data
- Industry is awaiting formal response from the Government on various components of the reform
- Transport Committee report published in July which outlines further recommendations including a ban on inducements to claims for whiplash and reducing the time period in which claims can be made
- Changes still expected to come into force October 2014 and industry expects revised rules to be published shortly

FCA thematic review of PCWs

- FCA recently concluded that PCWs fail to meet consumers' expectations for the following reasons:
- Failing to provide clear information such as policy coverage and terms
- Not making their role as distributor clear to consumers
- Not disclosing potential conflicts of interest
- Failure to fully implement guidance published back in 2011
- FCA are now providing individual feedback and engaging with the wider industry on its findings to address the specific issues

FCA thematic review of add ons

- FCA published its final report on 24 July focusing on the feedback received on its provisional findings and proposed remedies which had been published in Q1/2014, rather than on the details of remedy design
- Overall the FCA believes the feedback does not challenge its view that competition for add-ons is not effective
- FCA recognises the value some add-ons can provide; and that there are differences between the five products in the study and between different general insurance products more widely
- FCA now intend to take the proposed remedies forward via workshops and consultations starting this year

ABI renewal disclosures

- The ABI recently announced that it had written to the FCA proposing the following disclosures on customers renewal documentation:
  - Details of the previous years premiums
  - Details of when any introductory discounts expire
  - Proposed implementation is December 2015
